AKNOWLEDGEMENT:

It's true that hard-work always pays off and another achievement has been unlocked. Before I take a new step to life, I would like to give credits and gratitude to all people who became part of my college life and my inspiration to excel in every aspect of life.

First, is to my family, thank you for your love, care, and guidance, for always there on my good and bad times. Uplifting my spirit not to give up on my goal. You are a big part of my life since childhood, gearing me up to achieve my full potential and raising me as a good man.

Second is to my thesis panel, Professor Randolph Warren Gregorio Mayo II, Mr. Dennis De Vera, Professor Belledesma Villaver, and to my adviser, Professor Oliva Parico and the rest of the Department of Social Science faculty for painstakingly working for the betterment of my paper. Your comments, suggestion, and advice is my path to finish the study. Madame and sir, your efforts were greatly appreciated.

Third is to all Barangay Chairmen, Barangay Health Workers and all my respondents in three selected barangays in Guimba, Nueva Ecija. Thank you for your time and cooperation.

Fourth is to all my friends and schoolmates who was always there in pleasure and pain, to sleepless nights and collective efforts in study. You guys become my second family and I will cherish all unforgettable memories that were together especially to this people: Arvin Ariem, Jed Airo Batino, Jeremiah Avellanoza, John Mark Mallare, Ronel Cristobal, Jayson Casillan, Lourd Wyrλου Medina, Carl James Pangilinan, Charizza Libunao, Paulo Cruz,

Angela Cambe, Rhannel Lee, Arvin Villafria, Wilmar Paul Vaquilar, Edwin Francisco, and Lariza Mae Pajarillaga.

And lastly, to almighty God, our creator thank you for the life, strength, courage and knowledge you bestowed on me.

ABSTRACT

BALA, NIÑO H., Bachelor of Arts in Social Sciences, Department of Social Sciences, College of Arts and Sciences, Central Luzon State University, Science City of Muñoz, Nueva Ecija, Philippines, June 2017, MIGRATION INTENTION OF RURAL YOUTH IN SELECTED BARANGAYS IN GUIMBA, NUEVA ECIJA.

This quantitative study revolves on the migration intention of rural youth in selected barangays in Guimba, Nueva Ecija and to look further on what factors that influence rural youth to move from their place of origin and factors that attracts them to migrate to their place of destination, using the Push and Pull Theory of Everett s. Lee (1966).

The findings revealed that rural youths from three study areas who are more likely to migrate was triggered by low wage offered in the country and it's not enough to meet their daily needs. While the factors that attracts the rural youth to migrate was due to more jobs offered abroad with attractive high salary packages that can sustain their daily needs. The study also that younger the person, the higher the chance to migrate.
